Sexual Abuse & Violence Against Persons with Disabilities

UNIVERSITY OF ARIZONA RESEARCH PROJECT PARTICIPANTS NEEDED: Family members or persons who play a significant role in the life of a person with intellectual and developmental disabilities or autism.

We are looking for family members or persons who play a significant role in the life of a person with intellectual and developmental disabilities or autism. Sexual violence can include physical or non-physical contact, verbal threats, harassment, bullying, or intimidation. The purpose of the project is to better understand survivor's experiences from the perspectives of family and significant people who provide support. The goal is to increase awareness and to develop prevention strategies.

Confidential interviews will be scheduled with a trained team member. Participants will be compensated for their time.

If you have questions or want to schedule an interview, please contact:
